Introduction

The Department of Community Services and Development (CSD) has developed the 2026/2027 Community Needs Assessment (CNA) and Community Action Plan (CAP) template for the Community Services Block Grant (CSBG) Service Providers network. CSD requests agencies submit a completed CAP, including a CNA, to CSD on or before June 30, 2025. Changes from the previous template are detailed below in the “What’s New for 2026/2027?” section. Provide all narrative responses in 12-point Arial font with 1.15 spacing. A completed CAP template should not exceed 65 pages, excluding the appendices.

Purpose

Public Law 105-285 (the CSBG Act) and the California Government Code require that CSD secure a CAP, including a CNA from each agency. Section 676(b)(11) of the CSBG Act directs that receipt of a CAP is a condition to receive funding. Section 12747(a) of the California Government Code requires the CAP to assess poverty-related needs, available resources, feasible goals, and strategies that yield program priorities consistent with standards of effectiveness established for the program. Although CSD may prescribe statewide priorities or strategies that shall be considered and addressed at the local level, each agency is authorized to set its own program priorities in conformance to its determination of local needs. The CAP supported by the CNA is a two-year plan that shows how agencies will deliver CSBG services. CSBG funds are by their nature designed to be flexible. They shall be used to support activities that increase the capacity of low-income families and individuals to become self-sufficient.

Federal CSBG Programmatic Assurances and Certification

The Federal CSBG Programmatic Assurances are found in Section 676(b) of the CSBG Act. These assurances are an integral part of the information included in the CSBG State Plan. A list of the assurances that are applicable to CSBG agencies has been provided in the Federal Programmatic Assurances section of this template. CSBG agencies should review these assurances and confirm that they are in compliance. Signature of the board chair and executive director on the Cover Page certify compliance with the Federal CSBG Programmatic Assurances.

State Assurances and Certification

As required by the CSBG Act, states are required to submit a State Plan as a condition to receive funding. Information provided in agencies’ CAPs will be included in the CSBG State Plan. Alongside Organizational Standards, the state will be reporting on State Accountability Measures in order to ensure accountability and program performance improvement. A list of the applicable State Assurances is provided in this template. CSBG agencies should review these assurances and confirm that they are in compliance. Signature of the board chair and executive director on the Cover Page certify compliance with the State Assurances.

Compliance with CSBG Organizational Standards

As described in the Office of Community Services (OCS) Information Memorandum \(IM\) #138 dated January 26, 2015, CSBG agencies will comply with the Organizational Standards. A list of Organizational Standards that are met by an accepted CAP, including a CNA, are found in the Organizational Standards section of this template. Agencies are encouraged to utilize this list as a resource when reporting on the Organizational Standards annually.

What's New for 2026/2027?

Due Date. The due date for your agency's 2026/2027 CAP is June 30, 2025. However, earlier submission of the CSBG Network's CAPs will allow CSD more time to review and incorporate agency information in the CSBG State Plan and Application. CSD, therefore, requests that agencies submit their CAPs on or before May 31, 2025.

ROMA Certification Requirement. CSD requires that agencies have the capacity to provide their own ROMA, or comparable system, certification for your agency's 2026/2027 CAP. Certification can be provided by agency staff who have the required training or in partnership with a consultant or another agency.

Federal CSBG Programmatic and State Assurances Certification. In previous templates, the federal and state assurances were certified by signature on the Cover Page and by checking the box(es) in both federal and state assurances sections. In the 2026/2027 template, CSD has clarified the language above the signature block on the Cover Page and done away with the check boxes. Board chairs and executive directors will certify compliance with the assurances by signature only. However, the Federal CSBG Programmatic Assurances and the State Assurances language remain part of the 2026/2027 template.

Other Modifications. The title page of the template has been modified to include your agency's name and logo. Please use this space to brand your agency's CAP accordingly. CSD has also added references to the phases of the ROMA Cycle i.e. assessment, planning, implementation, achievement of results, and evaluation throughout the 2026/2027 template. Additionally, there are a few new questions, minor changes to old questions, and a reordering of some questions.

ROMA – Assessment

Based on your agency's most recent CNA, please respond to the questions below.

1. Describe the geographic location(s) that your agency is funded to serve with CSBG. If applicable, include a description of the various pockets, high-need areas, or neighborhoods of poverty that are being served by your agency.

California Human Development (CHD) is funded to serve 30 counties in Northern California, extending from Marin County east to Alpine County and north to the Oregon border. According to the Healthy Places Index (HPI) 2024, several of CHD's service areas, such as Sacramento County and Sonoma County, exhibit significant inequities in access to quality resources and services. The "Measure of America: A Portrait of California 2023" report uses the American Human Development Index (HD Index) to evaluate regions based on health, education, and income, classifying much of CHD's service area as "Struggling California," indicating persistent human development challenges.

Rural neighborhood clusters within CHD's region show life expectancies ranging from 76.2 years to 83.3 years, highlighting significant health equity gaps. These communities face challenges such as food insecurity, limited healthcare access, and increased health risks, including physical inactivity and substance misuse.

Farmworkers in California, many of whom reside in rural areas served by CHD, are among the state's most marginalized populations. According to a 2024 report by the California Institute for Rural Studies, farmworkers face severe housing challenges, including overcrowding and substandard living conditions. Farmworkers experience higher rates of health issues due to their working conditions and lack of access to healthcare.

The California Housing Partnership's 2024 report emphasizes the chronic shortage of affordable housing for farmworkers, compounded by limited state funding and infrastructure. These workers, vital to the state's agricultural economy, often live in regions prone to natural disasters like wildfires, which exacerbate their vulnerabilities.

The 2024 Napa County Farmworker Housing Needs and Impacts Assessment found that farmworkers face significant housing and commuting challenges, which force them to make unhealthy tradeoffs to afford rent. As much as 16% of the farm labor workforce in Napa endure daily commutes of up to four hours roundtrip. Many more live in overcrowded short-term rental situations. The vast majority of farmworkers surveyed have families and are living in intergenerational households, leveraging 3-4 working adult paychecks to meet rent or mortgage payments. Other household arrangements see larger numbers of individual adults living in overcrowded housing situations because they have to maintain a second full-time household for their spouse and children in distant counties due to the unavailability of affordable family-appropriate housing in-County. These farmworkers in particular experience disproportionately high rates of episodic homelessness following long workdays when the commute time would eliminate sleeping time, and so they spend nights sleeping in their cars or other places not meant for human habitation.

ROMA – Planning

1. Describe the key findings of your analysis of information collected directly from low-income individuals to better understand their needs. (Organizational Standards 1.1, 1.2)

California Human Development employs a comprehensive approach to analyze information collected from low-income individuals, utilizing two primary methods to ensure effective delivery service and strategic planning.

CHD program staff diligently collect data from various sources to conduct an initial analysis. This preliminary analysis is then presented to the CHD Board for review. The data collection encompasses a wide range of sources, including:

- CHD-Generated Data: This includes customer satisfaction surveys, client needs assessment surveys, and the CSBG Annual Report on client characteristics. These tools provide direct insights into the experiences and needs of low-income individuals served by CHD.
- Public Survey Data: CHD integrates external data sources such as the Healthy Places Index, Measure of America, U.S. Census data, and research from the Public Policy Institute of California. These sources offer a broader context on socioeconomic and health indicators across the service areas.

Data collected from low-income individuals is thoroughly presented and analyzed by both the CHD Board and CHD program staff. This collaborative analysis process involves:

- In-Depth Analysis: Board members and program staff engage in detailed discussions to interpret the data, identify trends, and assess the impact of existing programs and services.
- Strategic Decision-Making: The insights gained from the data analysis inform strategic decisions and help refine CHD's goals and objectives, ensuring that the agency's efforts are aligned with the needs of the communities it serves.

By employing this dual-method approach, CHD ensures that its strategies are data-driven and responsive to the evolving needs of low-income individuals in Northern California.

2. Describe your agency's assessment findings specific to poverty and its prevalence related to gender, age, and race/ethnicity for your service area(s). (Organizational Standard 3.2)

The California Human Development 2025 Community Needs Assessment provides a detailed overview of the challenges faced by low-income individuals and families across Northern California. The assessment draws on data collected from various sources, including surveys and public feedback, to identify key areas of need and barriers to self-sufficiency.

Gender

The assessment highlights that poverty impacts both genders significantly within the service areas. According to the survey data, 55.14% of respondents identified as male, while 42.86% identified as female, indicating a slightly higher prevalence of poverty among males. This observation is consistent with broader research suggesting that men in certain regions may experience higher unemployment rates, which contributes to economic instability.

Age

The age distribution of individuals facing poverty-related issues is diverse, with a significant impact on middle-aged groups. The largest age group affected is 45-54 years, comprising 23.88% of respondents, followed closely by the 35-44 age group at 23.23%. Younger adults aged 25-34 also represent a substantial portion at 17.32%. These findings highlight that middle-aged individuals are particularly vulnerable to poverty in the service area, which is consistent with national trends showing increased financial pressures on middle-aged adults.

Race/Ethnicity

The assessment findings indicate that immigrant populations, which often include racial and ethnic minorities, face significant challenges related to poverty. The survey results show that 61.29% of respondents serve immigrant populations, indicating a significant presence of diverse racial and ethnic groups facing poverty. Additionally, barriers due to immigration status are a notable employment-related issue, affecting 66.67% of respondents. This is supported by national data showing that immigrants often encounter systemic barriers that exacerbate poverty.

Overall, the assessment findings suggest that poverty in the service areas CHD serves is prevalent across various demographics, with notable impacts on men, middle-aged individuals, and immigrant populations. These findings are consistent with broader studies that highlight similar demographic trends in poverty across the United States.

3. “Causes of poverty” are the negative factors that create or foster barriers to self-sufficiency and/or reduce access to resources in communities in which low-income individuals live. After review and analysis of your needs assessment data, describe the causes of poverty in your agency’s service area(s). (Organizational Standard 3.4)

The California Human Development 2025 Community Needs Assessment highlights several critical factors contributing to poverty within its service areas, drawing insights from data collected from 884 survey respondents

Employment-Related Issues

A significant cause of poverty is the lack of good-paying jobs with benefits, as reported by 35.89% of respondents. Additionally, 54.04% of respondents cited a lack of English proficiency as a barrier to employment, which limits job opportunities and contributes to economic instability. The cost of childcare and lack of childcare during needed hours were also noted as barriers by 18.54% and 10.46% of respondents, respectively.

Educational Barriers

Educational challenges are prevalent, with 42.90% of respondents lacking a high school diploma and 41.63% lacking a GED. The lack of vocational skills programs affects 26.72% of respondents, highlighting a need for more educational resources to improve job readiness.

Housing and Living Costs

The high cost of living, particularly in terms of housing, is another critical factor. Rent or housing payments are too expensive for 61.41% of respondents, and 48.76% reported that energy costs are too high. Additionally, 29.20% of respondents indicated insufficient affordable housing as a significant issue.

Health and Nutrition

Health-related issues also exacerbate poverty, with 29.31% of respondents lacking medical insurance and 26.67% facing high costs for doctor visits. Furthermore, 93.55% of respondents reported insufficient income to purchase food, and 87.10% experienced food insecurity.

Access to Assistance Programs

Barriers to accessing assistance programs include a lack of information about available resources, affecting 72.79% of respondents, and complicated application processes, impacting 31.16%. Transportation issues also hinder access to services for 17.55% of respondents.

Overall, the combination of limited job opportunities, educational barriers, high living costs, health access issues, and systemic challenges like language barriers contribute to the persistence of poverty in CHD's service areas.

4. "Conditions of poverty" are the negative environmental, safety, health and/or economic conditions that may reduce investment or growth in communities where low-income individuals live. After review and analysis of your needs assessment data, describe the conditions of poverty in your agency's service area(s). (Organizational Standard 3.4)

The conditions of poverty in the service area of California Human Development are complex and multifaceted, impacting various aspects of life for low-income individuals. According to the Community Needs Assessment, a significant portion of the population struggles with access to basic needs, with 46.74% of respondents indicating difficulty accessing food, 21.78% struggling with shelter, and 24.41% with clothing. Additionally, 52.71% of respondents are unaware of support services available in their community, which exacerbates their challenges.

Housing-Related Issues

Housing-related issues are prevalent, with 61.41% of respondents stating that rent or housing payments are too expensive, and 48.76% indicating that energy costs are too high.

Furthermore, 29.20% of respondents report insufficient affordable housing, highlighting a critical barrier to stable living conditions. These challenges are compounded by the fact that 12.13% of respondents lack access to emergency shelters, and 12.78% report that their housing needs repairs.

Educational Challenges

Educational challenges also contribute to the conditions of poverty, as 42.90% of respondents lack a high school diploma, and 41.63% lack a GED. This lack of educational attainment limits employment opportunities and economic mobility. Additionally, 26.72% of respondents report a lack of vocational skills programs, which further hinders their ability to secure well-paying jobs.

Employment and Economic Barriers

Employment-related issues are significant, with 54.04% of respondents citing a lack of English proficiency as a barrier to employment, and 35.89% indicating a lack of good-paying jobs with benefits. The cost of childcare and transportation also pose challenges, with 18.54% and 14.70% of respondents, respectively, identifying these as barriers to employment.

Health and Safety Concerns

Health-related concerns further compound these issues, with 29.31% of respondents lacking medical insurance and 26.53% finding health insurance too expensive. Long waiting lists for dental care and high costs for doctor visits are additional barriers to accessing necessary healthcare.

Community Needs and Services

The community has expressed a need for various services, with 53.47% of respondents indicating a need for job training or skills development, and 56.23% calling for more affordable housing. Additionally, 47.84% of respondents believe that immigration assistance is necessary, reflecting the diverse needs of the community.

Overall, these conditions create a challenging environment for low-income individuals, reducing investment and growth in their communities. CHD's strategic initiatives aim to address these multifaceted challenges through comprehensive service delivery, community engagement, and strategic partnerships.

5. Describe your agency's data and findings obtained through the collecting, analyzing, and reporting of customer satisfaction data.

California Human Development conducted extensive surveys to assess community needs and stakeholder perspectives across its 30-county service area. This effort included 884 Community Needs Assessment surveys collected from clients and community members, as well as 31 Community Partner/Stakeholder surveys.

Community Needs Assessment

The Community Needs Assessment surveys revealed that a significant portion of respondents, 52.71%, were unaware of the support services available in their community, highlighting a critical gap in information dissemination. Additionally, 72.79% of respondents identified a lack of information about available programs as a major barrier to accessing assistance. The surveys also indicated a strong demand for services such as job training or skills development (53.47%), more affordable housing (56.23%), and immigration assistance (47.84%).

Community Partner/Stakeholder Survey

The Community Partner/Stakeholder surveys provided insights into the primary demographics served, with 80.65% of clients being low-income families, 61.29% individuals experiencing homelessness, and 61.29% immigrant populations. Employment-related issues were prominent, with 93.33% of partners citing a lack of job opportunities as a significant challenge for their clients. Furthermore, 96.77% of stakeholders emphasized the need for affordable housing initiatives, while 90.32% highlighted the importance of mental health and substance recovery support.

Barriers and Challenges

Both surveys identified common barriers to accessing assistance programs, such as complicated application processes (90.32% from stakeholders and 31.16% from community members) and transportation issues (77.42% from stakeholders and 17.55% from community members). These findings underscore the need for streamlined processes and improved transportation solutions to enhance service accessibility.

Strategic Implications

The data collected from these surveys will inform CHD's strategic planning and resource allocation, ensuring that programs are aligned with the identified needs of the community. By addressing the gaps in information and access, CHD aims to enhance its service delivery and support low-income individuals in achieving greater stability and improved quality of life.

Tripartite Board of Directors

CSBG Act Sections 676B(a) and (b), 676(b)(10)

Organizational Standards 1.1. 3.5

ROMA – Evaluation

1. Describe your agency's procedures under which a low-income individual, community organization, religious organization, or representative of low-income individuals that considers its organization or low-income individuals to be inadequately represented on your agency's board to petition for adequate representation. (CSBG Act Section 676(b)(10), Organizational Standard 1.1)

California Human Development maintains a tripartite Board of Directors to ensure balanced representation from public, private, and low-income sectors. Here is how CHD ensures adequate representation:

Board Composition:

- Public Sector (exactly 1/3): Vacancies are filled by elected officials or their representatives who are currently in office at the time of selection.
- Private Sector (1/3 or less): Vacancies are filled through the solicitation of individuals who bring necessary expertise and talent, or who represent underrepresented constituencies. Candidates are interviewed and recommended by Board representatives.
- Low-Income Sector (1/3 or more): Candidates are solicited through community engagement, public media, and service organizations. They must represent and understand the needs of low-income individuals, though they need not be low-income themselves.

Petitioning for Representation:

CHD provides mechanisms for low-income individuals, community organizations, and religious organizations to petition for representation if they feel inadequately represented:

1. Application Process: CHD accepts applications year-round. The Board's Governance Committee reviews applications and selects candidates to recommend to the full Board for approval.
2. Petition Method: Candidates can submit a petition signed by at least 20 low-income individuals (as defined by federal poverty guidelines) residing in one of the counties served by CHD.
3. Recommendation Letters: Alternatively, candidates can submit two letters of recommendation from organizations that serve or consist of low-income individuals.

By following these procedures, CHD ensures that its Board reflects the diverse communities it serves and remains responsive to the needs of low-income individuals.

2. Describe your process for communicating with and receiving formal approval from your agency board of the Community Needs Assessment (Organizational Standard 3.5).

California Human Development follows a systematic process to communicate the findings of the Community Needs Assessment and secure formal approval from the Board of Directors. Here's how the process is structured:

Data Collection and Analysis:

- Stakeholder Engagement: Input is solicited from a wide range of stakeholders, including community members, service providers, and local organizations, to enrich the assessment with diverse perspectives.

Drafting the Community Needs Assessment Report:

- Analysis and Synthesis: The collected data is analyzed and synthesized into a comprehensive CNA report. This report highlights key findings, identifies priority needs, and suggests potential strategies for addressing these needs.
- Internal Review: The draft report undergoes an internal review by CHD program staff to ensure accuracy and relevance.

Communication with the Board:

- Presentation Preparation: CHD staff prepare a detailed presentation of the CNA report for the Board of Directors, highlighting critical findings, proposed strategies, and potential impacts.
- Board Briefing: An initial briefing is conducted with the Board to provide an overview of the CNA process and findings, allowing for preliminary questions and feedback.

Formal Presentation and Discussion:

- Board Meeting Presentation: The final CNA report is formally presented during a scheduled Board meeting. Key staff members present the findings and recommendations and facilitate a discussion with Board members.
- Q&A Session: Board members are encouraged to ask questions, provide input, and discuss the implications of the findings on CHD's programs and strategic priorities.

Formal Approval:

- Board Deliberation: After the presentation and discussion, the Board deliberates on the CNA report and any proposed actions.
- Approval Vote: A formal vote is conducted to approve the CNA report. This approval signifies the Board's endorsement of the findings and commitment to addressing the identified community needs.

Integration into Strategic Planning:

- Strategic Alignment: The approved CNA report is integrated into CHD’s strategic planning process, guiding program development and resource allocation.
- Ongoing Evaluation: The impact of the CNA findings on CHD’s programs is monitored and evaluated to ensure alignment with community needs.

By adhering to this structured process, CHD ensures transparent communication and effective collaboration with the Board, fostering informed decision-making and strategic alignment with community needs.

2. Describe how the poverty data related to gender, age, and race/ethnicity referenced in Part II: Causes and Conditions of Poverty, Question 2 will inform your service delivery and strategies in the coming two years?

California Human Development is committed to leveraging detailed poverty data related to gender, age, and race/ethnicity to refine and enhance its service delivery and strategies over the next two years. Here's how this data will inform our efforts:

Tailoring Services to Demographic Needs:

- Gender-Specific Programs: By analyzing poverty data through a gender lens, CHD can identify disparities and tailor programs to address unique challenges faced by different genders. For instance, if data indicates higher poverty rates among women, CHD might expand services such as job training programs targeting sectors with high female employment or support services for single mothers.
- Age-Targeted Interventions: Understanding the age distribution of individuals in poverty allows CHD to design age-appropriate interventions. For example, CHD can develop youth-focused educational programs or career pathways for young adults, while also enhancing senior services for older adults facing economic hardship.

Addressing Racial and Ethnic Disparities:

- Culturally Responsive Services: By examining poverty data across racial and ethnic lines, CHD can identify communities disproportionately affected by poverty. This data guides the development of culturally responsive programs that address specific needs, such as language barriers or community-specific health challenges.

- Equity-Focused Strategies: Recognizing racial and ethnic disparities in poverty rates enables CHD to prioritize equity in its strategic planning. This might involve targeted outreach efforts to underserved communities, partnerships with culturally specific organizations, or advocacy for policy changes addressing systemic inequities.

Strategic Planning and Resource Allocation:

- Data-Driven Decision Making: By integrating poverty data into strategic planning, CHD ensures that resources are allocated efficiently and effectively. This data-driven approach helps prioritize programs that have the greatest potential impact on reducing poverty and improving quality of life for diverse demographic groups.
- Monitoring and Evaluation: Continuous analysis of poverty data allows CHD to monitor the effectiveness of its programs and make necessary adjustments. Regular evaluation ensures that services remain relevant and responsive to changing demographic trends and needs.

Community Engagement and Advocacy:

- Inclusive Community Engagement: Data on poverty and demographics informs CHD's community engagement strategies, ensuring that diverse voices are heard and included in program development. This engagement fosters trust and collaboration with the communities CHD serves.
- Advocacy for Systemic Change: Armed with detailed poverty data, CHD can advocate more effectively for policies and resources that address the root causes of poverty and promote social justice.

By utilizing poverty data related to gender, age, and race/ethnicity, CHD can enhance its service delivery and strategies, ensuring they are equitable, effective, and aligned with the needs of the communities it serves.

- Strategic Partnerships: CHD partners with key agencies such as CalWorks, the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) and its Operators, the Employment Development Department (EDD), and other Community Action Agencies. These partnerships are built on a foundation of clear communication and shared objectives, ensuring that services are non-duplicative and targeted towards community needs.
- Leveraging Resources: CHD strategically leverages Community Services Block Grant (CSBG) funds alongside approximately $12 million in additional public and private resources. By pooling these resources, CHD enhances its capacity to deliver comprehensive services and address the multifaceted challenges faced by the communities we serve.
- Participation in Coalitions: CHD actively participates in formalized coalitions of social service providers within our service area. These coalitions facilitate coordinated service delivery and funding alignment, fostering collaboration and information sharing among member organizations. Memorandums of Understanding (MOUs) / Service Agreements: CHD has developed comprehensive Memorandums of Understanding with each Workforce Investment/Development Board within our service areas. These MOUs serve as foundational agreements that outline the terms and conditions for collaboration, focusing on the following key aspects:

- Coordination of Services: The MOUs facilitate effective coordination among partners to streamline service delivery, avoid duplication of efforts, and ensure that clients receive comprehensive support. By clearly defining roles and responsibilities, these agreements enable a more integrated approach to addressing community needs.
- Funding Alignment: Through these agreements, CHD and the Workforce Investment/Development Boards align their funding strategies to maximize resource utilization. This alignment ensures that financial resources are directed towards high-impact initiatives that address the most pressing needs of low-income and at-risk populations.

These agreements specify the scope of services to be provided, performance expectations, and mechanisms for ongoing communication and evaluation. Through these formalized agreements, CHD is committed to building strong, collaborative partnerships that enhance the effectiveness and reach of our services, ultimately improving outcomes for the communities we serve.

3. Describe how your agency ensures delivery of services to low-income individuals while avoiding duplication of services in the service area(s). (CSBG Act Section 676(b)(5), California Government Code 12760)

California Human Development is dedicated to delivering services effectively to low-income individuals while strategically avoiding duplication within our service areas. Here's how we achieve this:

organizations, we maximize resource efficiency and achieve cost-effective outcomes for our clients.

- Active Participation in Workforce Systems: CHD is an integral part of the WIOA America's Job Center of California governance and operations system. Although no longer a mandatory member of local Workforce Investment/Development Boards (WIBs/WDBs) due to legislative changes in 2016, CHD remains a valued partner at the request of many WIBs/WDBs, reflecting our ongoing commitment to collaborative workforce development efforts.
- Comprehensive Planning with Local Partners: In planning our CSBG, farmworker, and other programs, CHD considers the services provided by over 250 local and regional partners. We utilize referral agreements and Memorandums of Understanding (MOUs) to ensure that our clients receive holistic and coordinated service plans. These agreements are periodically reviewed and updated to maintain their relevance and effectiveness.
- Expanding Services to Underserved Areas: CHD actively engages with rural Community Action Agencies to extend supportive Migrant and Seasonal Farmworker (MSFW) services that these agencies may not be able to provide. This outreach ensures that even the most underserved communities have access to essential services, thereby filling gaps without overlapping.
- Continuous Evaluation and Improvement: CHD continuously evaluates its service delivery mechanisms to identify opportunities for improvement and ensure alignment with community needs. This ongoing assessment helps us adapt to changing circumstances and maintain a high standard of service provision.

- Optimizing Workforce and Building Capacity: By strategically reducing staff numbers and investing in enhanced training, education, and capacity-building for our remaining team, we can lower overhead costs while boosting overall productivity and service quality.
- Expanding Fee-for-Service Contracts: Increasing our fee-for-service contracts provides an opportunity to offset potential funding losses. This strategy enables us to redirect revenue towards essential operational costs, ensuring program continuity.
- Leveraging Diverse Funding Sources: We continue to leverage CSBG funds alongside other funding sources to support ongoing program improvements and expansion, reinforcing our financial resilience and service delivery capabilities.
- Reducing Operational Overhead: CHD is actively reducing rental expenses by relocating to more affordable spaces and consolidating operations. This ongoing effort to downsize and reassess our business operations helps reduce overhead and

- Comprehensive Monitoring Approach: Monitoring would involve both onsite visits and desk reviews to ensure compliance with contractual obligations and quality standards. Onsite visits would provide firsthand insights into operations, while desk reviews would focus on analyzing documentation and performance data.
- Regular Monitoring Schedule: The frequency of monitoring would be determined based on the nature and scope of the subcontracted work, with regular assessments scheduled to ensure consistent oversight and support.
- Follow-Up on Corrective Actions: In cases where corrective actions are needed, CHD would follow up promptly to ensure that subcontractors address any identified issues. We would work collaboratively to resolve concerns and enhance delivery service.
- Issuance of Formal Monitoring Reports: Formal monitoring reports would be issued to document findings, highlight areas of excellence, and outline recommendations for improvement. These reports would serve as a basis for ongoing dialogue and development.
- Emergency Monitoring Procedures: In the event of an emergency or unexpected issue, CHD would implement expedited monitoring procedures to address the situation swiftly and effectively. This would include immediate onsite assessments and rapid response measures.

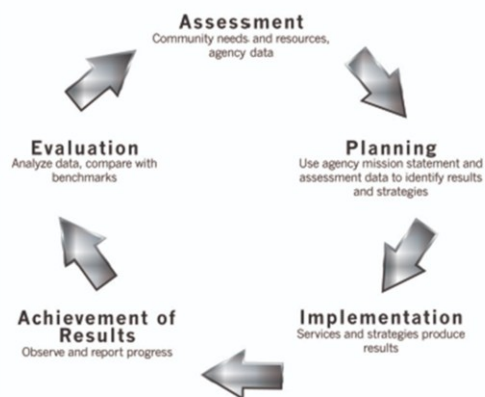

By establishing a thorough and responsive monitoring process, CHD aims to ensure that any future subcontracting arrangements uphold the highest standards of service and accountability.

Introduction

Every two years, Community Action Partnership of California Human Development (CHD) conducts a Community Needs Assessment (CNA) to identify current and emerging needs for low-income Individuals and families. As part of the Results Orientated Management & Accountability (ROMA) model, the CNA and other organizational information is used to complete the Community Action Plan (CAP) and to develop CHD’s strategic goals and as a foundation for continuous improvement.

Approach and Methods

The CNA is completed through a collection and analysis of data and information from the following sources:

US Census and Literature Review: CHD performs extensive research of secondary data sources such as the Public Policy Institute of California, US Department of Human Services, CA Department of Labor, Healthy Places Index, US Department of Housing, and numerous studies and reports. This information is used to gain overall community context and to assist in the development of the CHD’s Community Needs Surveys.

Survey: CHD conducts surveys of three groups—CHD clients, CHD partners and other community organizations, and CHD staff and Board Members—to gather information about what services are needed in the community to assist low-income people and families.

Interviews and Focus Groups: Interviews and focus groups are conducted with CHD Clients and stakeholders to do a deeper dive into the survey data.

CHD's Programs and CSBG Data: This type of information is used to compare survey and other information, such as Community Services Block Grant (CSBG) data, to ensure CHD programs and services are needed in the community.

Priority Areas: Information and data are analyzed to identify top priority community need areas for CHD's strategic planning and continuous improvement.

Key Findings

The following are highlights of the CHD 2025 Community Needs Assessment Literature Review:

Population and Income

- Population Growth: California's population reached approximately 41.8 million in 2024, showing consistent growth from 41.372 million in 2023. This growth reflects ongoing demographic trends and migration patterns.
- Median Income: The median income for a one-person household in 2023 was $69,660, increasing slightly to approximately $70,000 in 2024, reflecting gradual economic growth.

Poverty and Safety Net Programs

- Poverty Levels: More than a quarter of Californians live in or near poverty. Safety net programs like CalFresh have been instrumental in reducing poverty rates, keeping one million Californians out of poverty as of fall 2021.

Age Disparities in Poverty

- Older Adults: In recent years, poverty rates among adults 65 and older have risen to 16.3%, surpassing rates among children (9.0%) and adults aged 18–64 (11.6%). This trend signifies a reversal from previous years when child poverty was the highest. Contributing factors include fixed incomes, rising healthcare costs, and the inadequacy of retirement savings, which have left many older adults financially vulnerable.

Demographics and Racial/Ethnic Disparities

- Latino and Immigrant Communities: Despite a decrease in the Latino poverty rate to 13.5%, Latinos still account for 45.7% of the poor population. Immigrant poverty rates remain high, with undocumented immigrants experiencing a 25.1% poverty rate. California employs a third of U.S. farmworkers, over 800,000, and half of California's farmworkers are not authorized to work in the United States.

Low-Wage Jobs and Workforce Development

- Low-Wage Employment: A significant portion of California's workforce is employed in low-wage jobs, contributing to ongoing economic insecurity. The Farm Workforce Modernization Act (FWMA) seeks to address labor supply issues by providing legal status to undocumented farm employees in exchange for continued work in agriculture.
- Workforce Development Needs: There is a growing need for workforce development and job training programs to equip workers with skills for higher-paying and more stable employment.

Education and Poverty

- Educational Impact: Education remains a crucial determinant of economic well-being. Only 6.2% of college graduates live in poverty compared to 19.5% of adults without a high school diploma.

Rural and Farmworker Communities

- Farmworker Demographics: California is home to between 500,000 and 800,000 farmworkers, primarily concentrated in the San Joaquin Valley (61%) and Central Coast (31%). The state employs a third of U.S. farmworkers, half of whom are unauthorized.
- Legalization Efforts: The FWMA aims to provide legal status to many undocumented agricultural workers, with 41% (293,000 workers) of the crop farm workforce in California estimated to be eligible for Certified Agricultural Worker (CAW) status.

Health and Safety

- Health Insurance: Around 8% of Californians lacked health insurance in 2023, with immigrants disproportionately affected. The National Agriculture Workers Survey (NAWS) found that 48% of crop workers reported having health insurance, with coverage highest among U.S.-born, settled crop workers (80%) and lowest among foreign-born migrants (33%).
- Workplace Safety: Agriculture remains one of the most dangerous occupations, with significant health risks.

Housing and Economic Strain

- Housing Affordability: Housing costs continue to impose financial strain, with 61% of renters reporting financial difficulties compared to 30% of homeowners.

Conclusion

This literature review highlights the complex socio-economic challenges in California, particularly the issues faced by farmworkers and low-wage workers. The FWMA seeks to address labor supply issues by providing legal status to undocumented farmworkers, which could significantly impact the agricultural sector. Addressing these challenges requires targeted policy interventions in workforce development, housing, and healthcare access. Collaborative efforts across multiple sectors are essential to create sustainable solutions. For a comprehensive understanding, consulting the latest reports and data from the cited sources is recommended.

CHD Service Area

California Human Development (CHD) is at the forefront of efforts to combat poverty in Northern California, having established pathways of opportunity for residents in 30 counties since 1967. The organization is committed to empowering the most at-risk individuals to achieve self-sufficiency through tailored programs and services.

CHD's service area spans a vast region, stretching from Marin County eastward to Alpine County and extending north to the Oregon border. This extensive coverage ensures that CHD can address the diverse challenges faced by communities throughout the region.

According to the Healthy Places Index, several of CHD's largest service areas, such as Sacramento and Sonoma counties, exhibit significant needs for enhanced services due to substantial inequities in resource access and quality. Additionally, counties like Butte, Colusa, Lake, Yuba, and Sutter consistently receive low scores on the Healthy Places Index, indicating persistent challenges in health and well-being.

The Community Needs Assessment highlights that more than a quarter of Californians live in or near poverty, with safety net programs like CalFresh playing a crucial role in reducing poverty rates. In particular, older adults have seen a rise in poverty rates to 16.3%, surpassing rates among children and adults aged 18–64. This trend is significant in CHD's service areas, where economic disparities are prevalent.

Demographic data reveals that Latino and immigrant communities face high poverty rates, with undocumented immigrants experiencing a 25.1% poverty rate. This is particularly relevant in CHD's service areas, where a significant portion of the population is engaged in low-wage jobs, contributing to ongoing economic insecurity.

Community Needs Assessments conducted across all CHD service areas ensure that programs and services are specifically tailored to meet the unique needs of each county. This comprehensive approach allows CHD to effectively address the socio-economic challenges faced by these communities. By focusing on these areas, CHD aims to provide targeted support and resources to its largest client demographic, addressing specific needs such as language barriers and access to health care.

CHD 2025 Community Needs Assessment Overview

As a Community Services Block Grant eligible entity, California Human Development completes a bi-annual Community Needs Assessment. The CNA identifies and assesses poverty-related needs and resources in the community to identify priority areas of focus. The assessment includes CHD conducted surveys, secondary data (US Census and other reports), and client and other stakeholder interviews. The following information is based on the results of the CHD 2025 Community Needs Surveys.

Method

The CHD 2025 Community Needs Survey was conducted from February 4, 2025, to March 23, 2025, to assess the needs across CHD service areas for assisting low-income individuals and families. The survey was available in multiple languages, with online surveys offering multilingual accessibility, while paper surveys were provided in English and Spanish. The distribution of surveys targeted CHD clients, partners, community agencies, staff, and board members, utilizing both electronic and paper formats. Electronic surveys were disseminated through email blasts, social media, and printed flyers, ensuring broad reach. Paper surveys were distributed and collected at CHD program sites, allowing for direct engagement with clients.

A noted limitation of the survey was the reliance on electronic distribution, which may have excluded some CHD clients who lacked access to the internet, computers, or smartphones. This limitation highlights the importance of providing multiple avenues for survey participation to ensure inclusive and comprehensive data collection. The approach of using both electronic and paper surveys aimed to maximize participation and gather diverse input from the community.

A total of 915 surveys were collected as follows:

Survey	Total Response
Community members & CHD Clients	884
Partners / Community Agencies	31
Total Responses	915

Of the client and stakeholder surveys, a majority were submitted in Spanish, while a smaller portion were completed in English. This indicates that a significant portion of the surveys were completed by individuals who preferred to respond in Spanish. The data suggests that Spanish-speaking respondents constituted a major part of the survey participants. Most of the surveys completed in Spanish were filled out using paper forms, highlighting the importance of providing multilingual and accessible options for community engagement.

CHD Client Demographics

Race/Ethnicity

The majority of clients surveyed were CHD clients currently affiliated with a CHD program or seeking services. According to the updated data, the largest population that CHD serves is of Hispanic/Latino origins, reflecting a significant portion of the client base. This aligns with the findings from the National Agricultural Workers Survey, which reported that 63% of crop workers were born in Mexico, highlighting the prevalence of Hispanic individuals in agricultural work. Additionally, the NAWS data shows that 66% of crop workers categorized their race with an "other" response, further emphasizing the diversity within the Hispanic community.

The NAWS also provides insights into the socioeconomic conditions of these workers, noting that the average level of formal education completed by crop workers was ninth grade, and 29% reported that they could not speak English at all. These factors contribute to the challenges faced by the Hispanic population in accessing services and improving their economic conditions. Furthermore, the NAWS highlights that 48% of crop workers reported having health insurance, with coverage rates highest among U.S.-born, settled crop workers (80%) and lowest among foreign-born migrants (33%).

This distribution closely mirrors CHD's overall client race/ethnicity demographics, indicating a representative sample of the CHD client population. The emphasis on serving the Hispanic community is crucial, as it addresses the specific needs and challenges faced by this group, including language barriers and access to health care. By focusing on these areas, CHD can continue to provide targeted support and resources to its largest client demographic.

Gender/Age

In FY 2024, CHD served a total of 12,566 individuals. Of these, 6,332 were male clients, 5,689 were female clients, and 545 individuals did not report their gender. The age range of 25-44 years was the most represented among clients served by CHD's programs and services, highlighting the organization's focus on supporting working-age adults. This age group reflects a significant portion of the population that engages with CHD services, underscoring the need for targeted support and resources for this demographic.

Poverty Rate

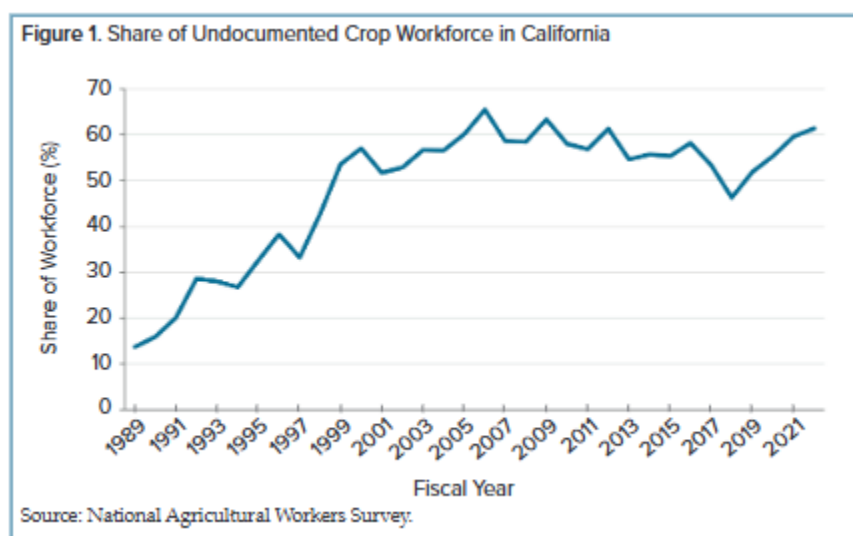

The National Agricultural Workers Survey and the American Community Survey (ACS) provide a comprehensive view of the socioeconomic conditions affecting crop workers and the broader population in California, with a particular focus on poverty. According to the NAWS, 66% of crop workers are male, with an average age of 41 years, and 63% were born in Mexico. These workers face significant economic challenges, with average hourly earnings of $13.59, which may not be sufficient to lift them out of poverty, especially in areas with high living costs.

The ACS data from 2022 further highlights the economic disparities in California. The median household income is $96,334, with a mean household income of $136,730. However, these figures mask significant disparities among different racial and ethnic groups. Latino Californians earn about $30,183 annually, significantly less than their white counterparts who earn $51,744. Asian workers earn slightly less than white workers, with an average income of $51,110. Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander, Black, and Native American workers have earnings of $38,246, $36,441, and $32,360, respectively, placing them closer to Latino workers in terms of income.

The NAWS also reports that 48% of crop workers have health insurance, with coverage rates highest among U.S.-born, settled crop workers (80%) and lowest among foreign-born migrants (33%). This lack of coverage can lead to significant out-of-pocket expenses for health care, further straining financial resources and contributing to poverty.

In terms of health care access, 63% of crop workers received health care services in the U.S. for routine or preventive care, illness, injury, or dental care in the 12 months prior to their interview. Workers with health insurance were more likely to report using health care services (72%) compared to workers without health insurance (54%). The type of health care provider visited depended on farm workers' health insurance status; a higher proportion of insured workers visited a private provider, whereas uninsured workers tended to visit a community health center or migrant health clinic.

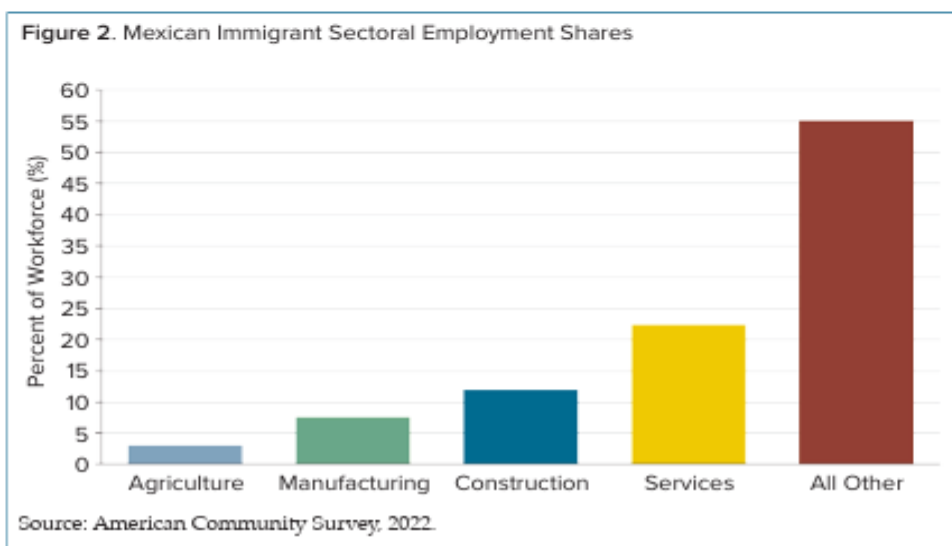

The Farm Workforce Modernization Act aims to address these labor supply issues by providing legal status to undocumented farm employees in exchange for continued work in agriculture. The FWMA would also make changes to the H-2A visa temporary agricultural guest worker program to ensure the program can remain viable in the future. According to estimates, 41% of California's crop farm workforce is eligible for Certified Agricultural Worker status, which could lead to legal work authorization and potentially reduce poverty among these workers.

Overall, the data from NAWS and ACS underscores the need for targeted interventions to address the economic and health care challenges faced by workers in California, particularly those in the agricultural sector. These efforts are crucial in alleviating poverty and improving the quality of life for crop workers and their families in the CHD regions.

Community Needs Assessment Survey Results

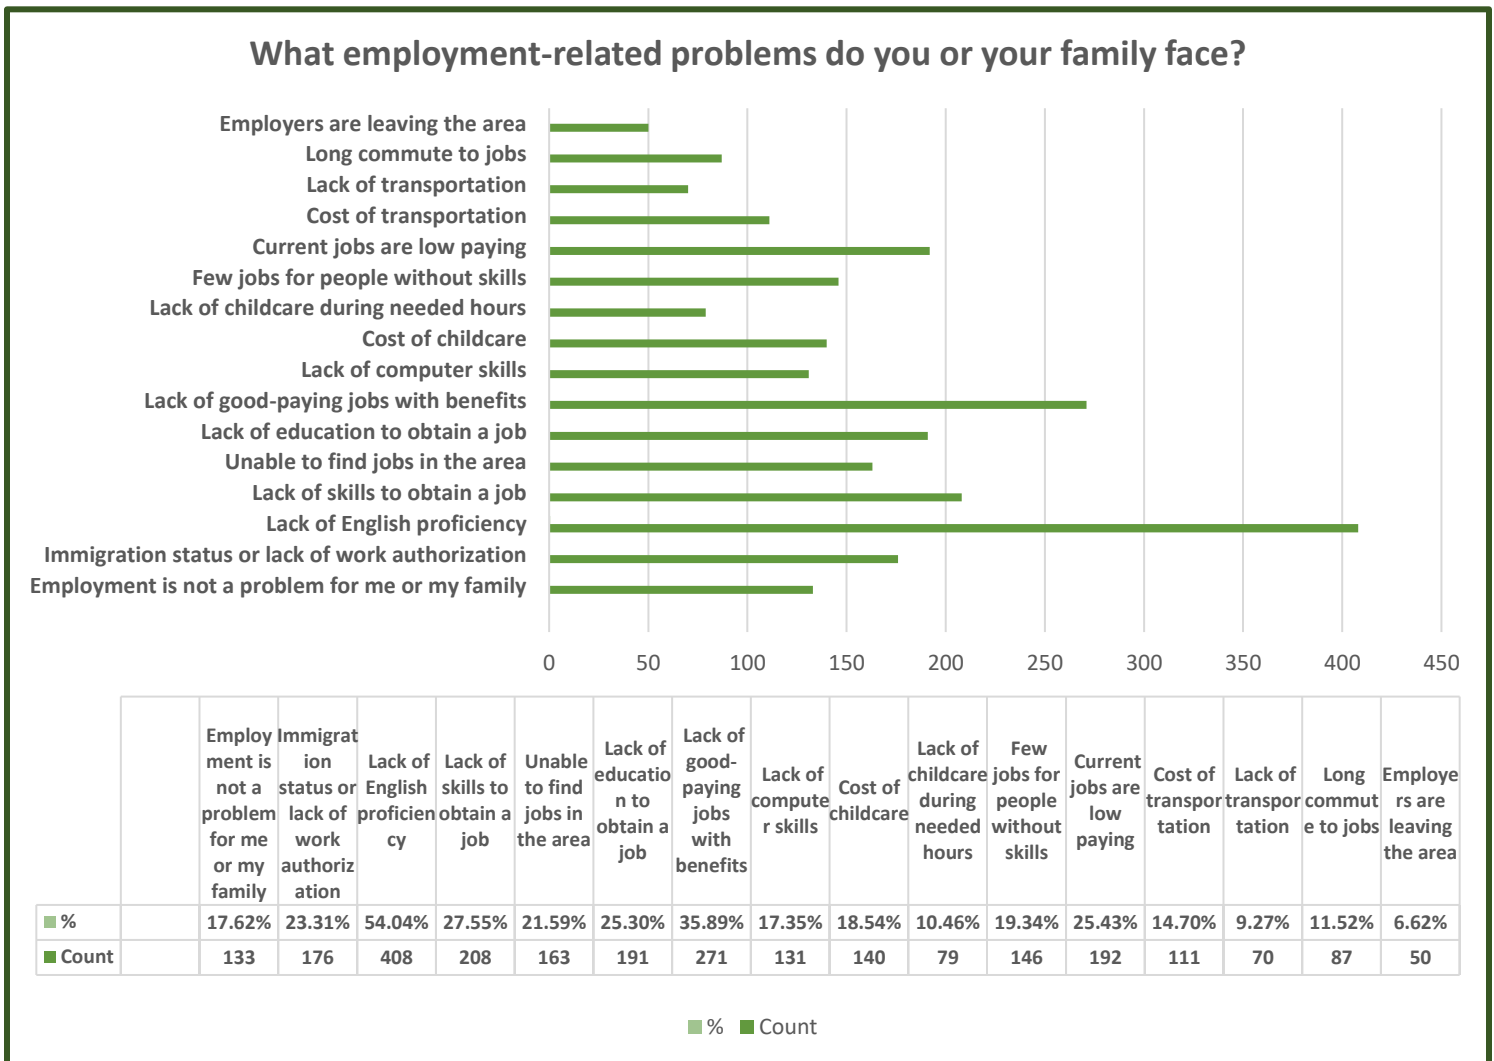

The CHD 2025 Community Needs Assessment provides a comprehensive overview of the socio-economic challenges faced by residents across 30 Northern California counties. Conducted in March 2025, this assessment aims to identify key areas where California Human Development can focus its efforts to better serve the community. The survey collected data on various demographic factors, including age, gender, and household composition, revealing a diverse population with unique needs. Additionally, the assessment explored critical issues such as income levels, access to basic needs, and barriers to assistance programs, highlighting the pressing concerns of financial instability and lack of awareness about available support services. By examining these factors, the report provides valuable insights into the community's needs and the potential areas for intervention by CHD.

Employment Domain

In the employment domain, our surveys asked stakeholders and our client community why employment is a need or a problem in the community. The survey results indicate that education and skill development were the largest response group, with finding jobs or a lack of good-paying jobs coming in second. A significant barrier identified is the lack of English proficiency, which affects 54.04% of respondents, preventing clients from accessing available training. Other barriers include transportation (14.70%), immigration status (23.31%), and childcare (18.54%), which are recurring themes across various domains.

Analyzing client and stakeholder responses, it is evident that well-paying employment is a critical need, with multiple barriers hindering access. One such barrier is that California’s minimum wage is insufficient to lift a family of three out of poverty, falling short of the income needed for a standard living. For farmworkers, just over half have work authorization, making them eligible for programs like the National Farmworker Jobs Program, which provides career pathways.

Education Domain

In the education domain, our surveys asked stakeholders and our client community why education is a need or a problem in the community. The survey highlighted that the lack of a high school diploma (42.90%) and access to GED programs (41.63%) were significant issues, followed by the need for vocational skills training (26.72%). Transportation, childcare, and English proficiency were also identified as cross-domain themes.

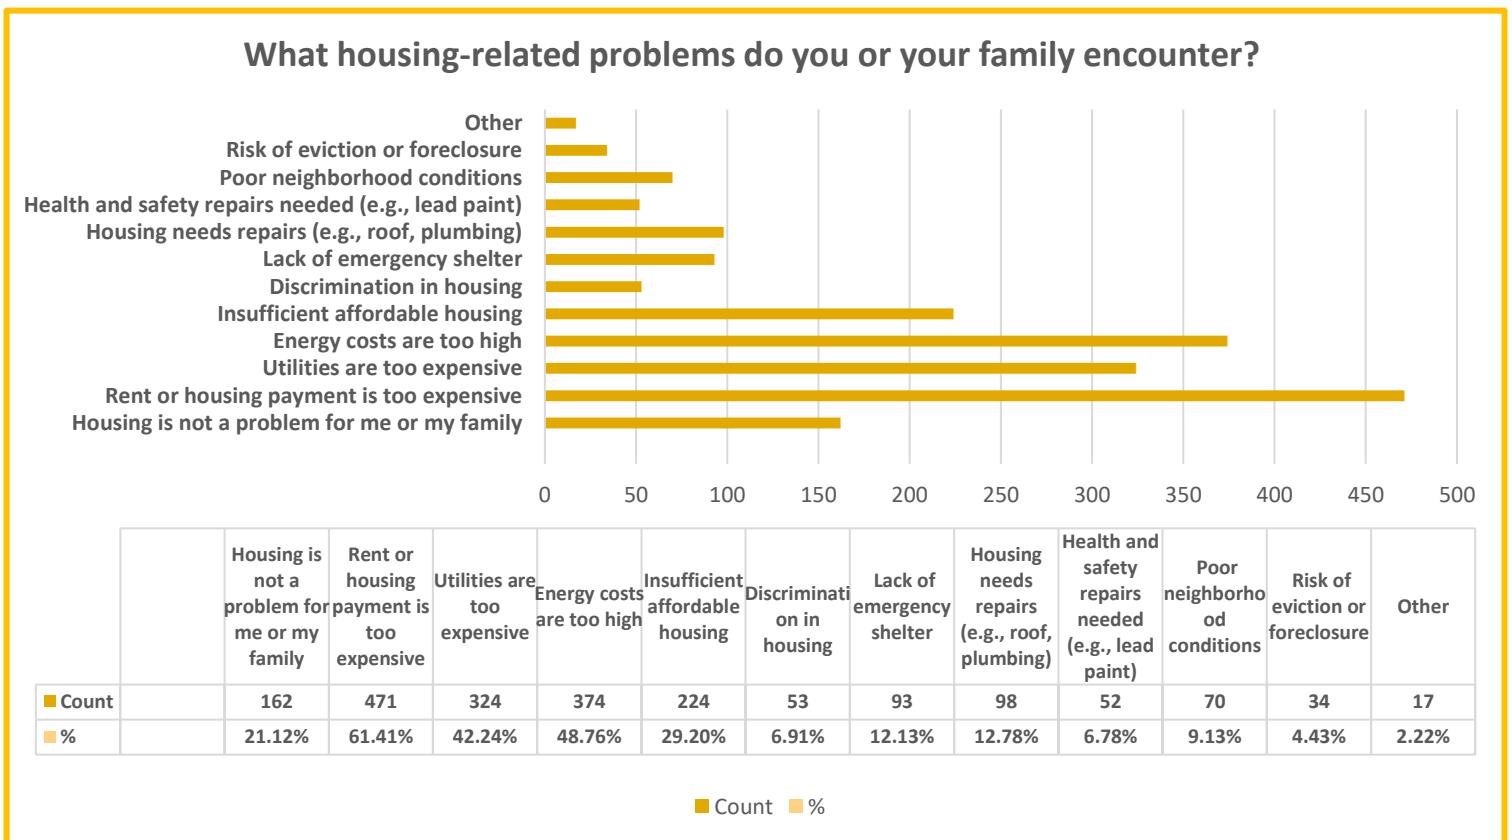

Vocational training and cost considerations are primary concerns. Access to vocational training can be challenging for those without a high school diploma, and the cost of education remains a barrier. Financial aid often leaves low-income students with substantial financial burdens, making vocational training a viable alternative.

Housing Domain

In the housing domain, our surveys asked stakeholders and our client community why housing is a need or a problem in the community. The survey results consistently pointed to availability and affordability as major issues, with 61.41% of respondents indicating that rent or housing payments are too expensive. Natural disasters in the service area may have contributed to responses related to emergency shelter needs (12.13%). Additionally, the high cost of utilities was a significant concern, affecting 42.24% of respondents.

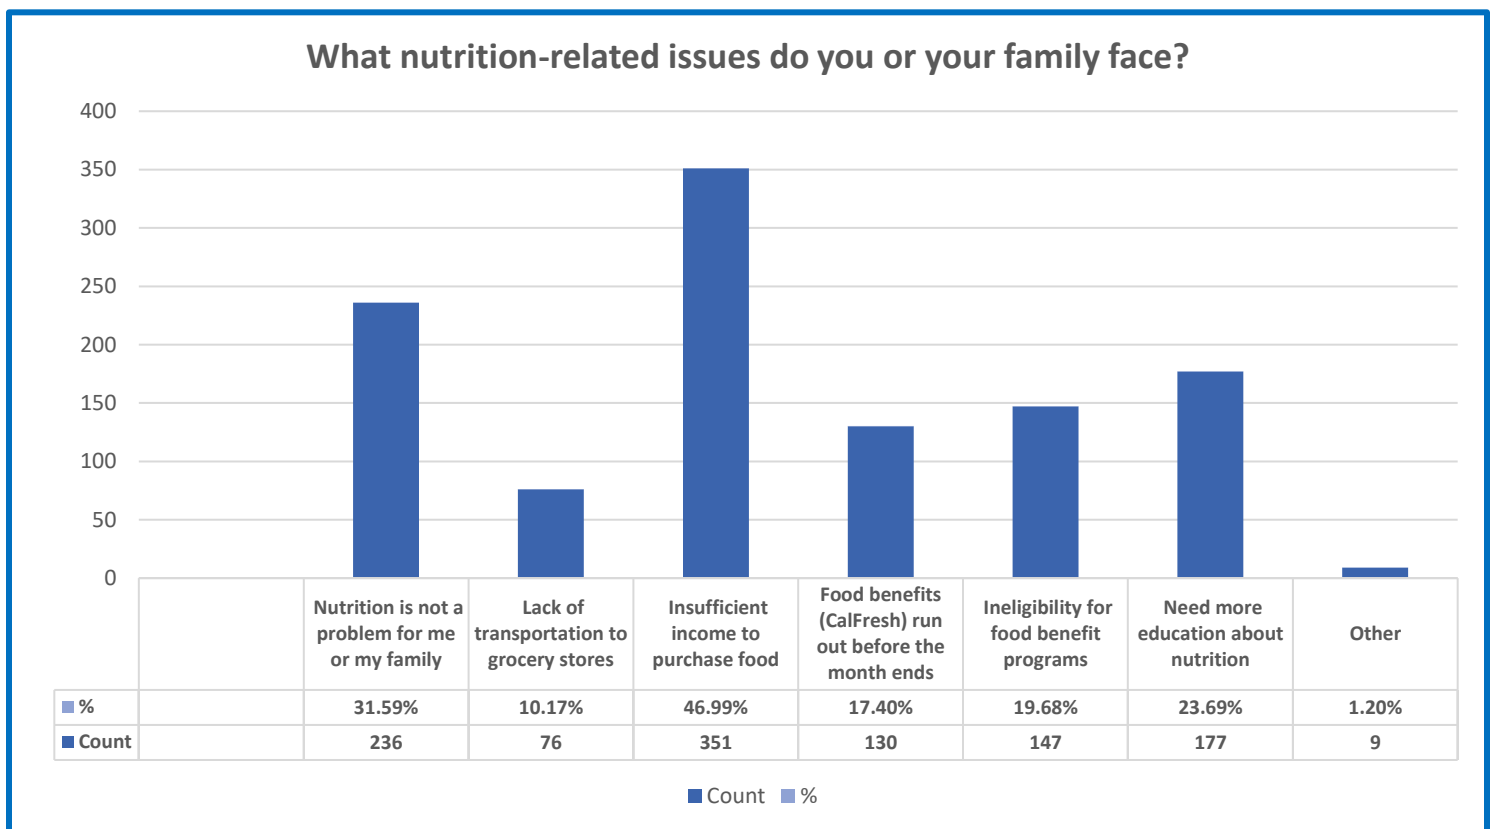

Housing affordability is a widespread issue in California, affecting low-income families disproportionately. The state’s housing production has not kept pace with demand, exacerbating the problem. Affordable housing remains a critical need, as reflected in both stakeholder and client survey results.

Nutrition Domain

In the nutrition domain, our surveys asked stakeholders and our client community why nutrition is a need or a problem in the community. Cost was identified as the primary reason nutrition is a problem, with 46.99% of respondents citing insufficient income to purchase food. Many respondents (19.68%) indicated that they were not eligible for food stamps, highlighting a gap between eligibility guidelines and the income needed for food security.

Providing nutrition assistance and education on healthy eating habits is essential to address these issues.

Income Domain

In the income domain, our surveys asked stakeholders and our client community why income is a need or a problem in the community. The survey revealed that clients identified insufficient income (58.82%) as a primary problem, highlighting the financial struggles faced by many households. This issue is compounded by the fact that a significant portion of respondents, 22.50%, reported difficulty with money management, which further exacerbates their financial instability.

Additionally, 17.11% of respondents indicated a lack of knowledge about savings, suggesting a gap in financial literacy that could be addressed through targeted educational programs. The survey also found that 5.53% of participants are not receiving owed child support, which can significantly impact the financial well-being of affected families.

Substance use or addiction affecting finances was reported by 3.42% of respondents, indicating that personal challenges can also play a role in financial difficulties. Furthermore, 15.53% of respondents expressed a need for more information on assistance programs, underscoring the importance of improving awareness and accessibility of available resources.

What challenges do you face in managing your income or budgeting?

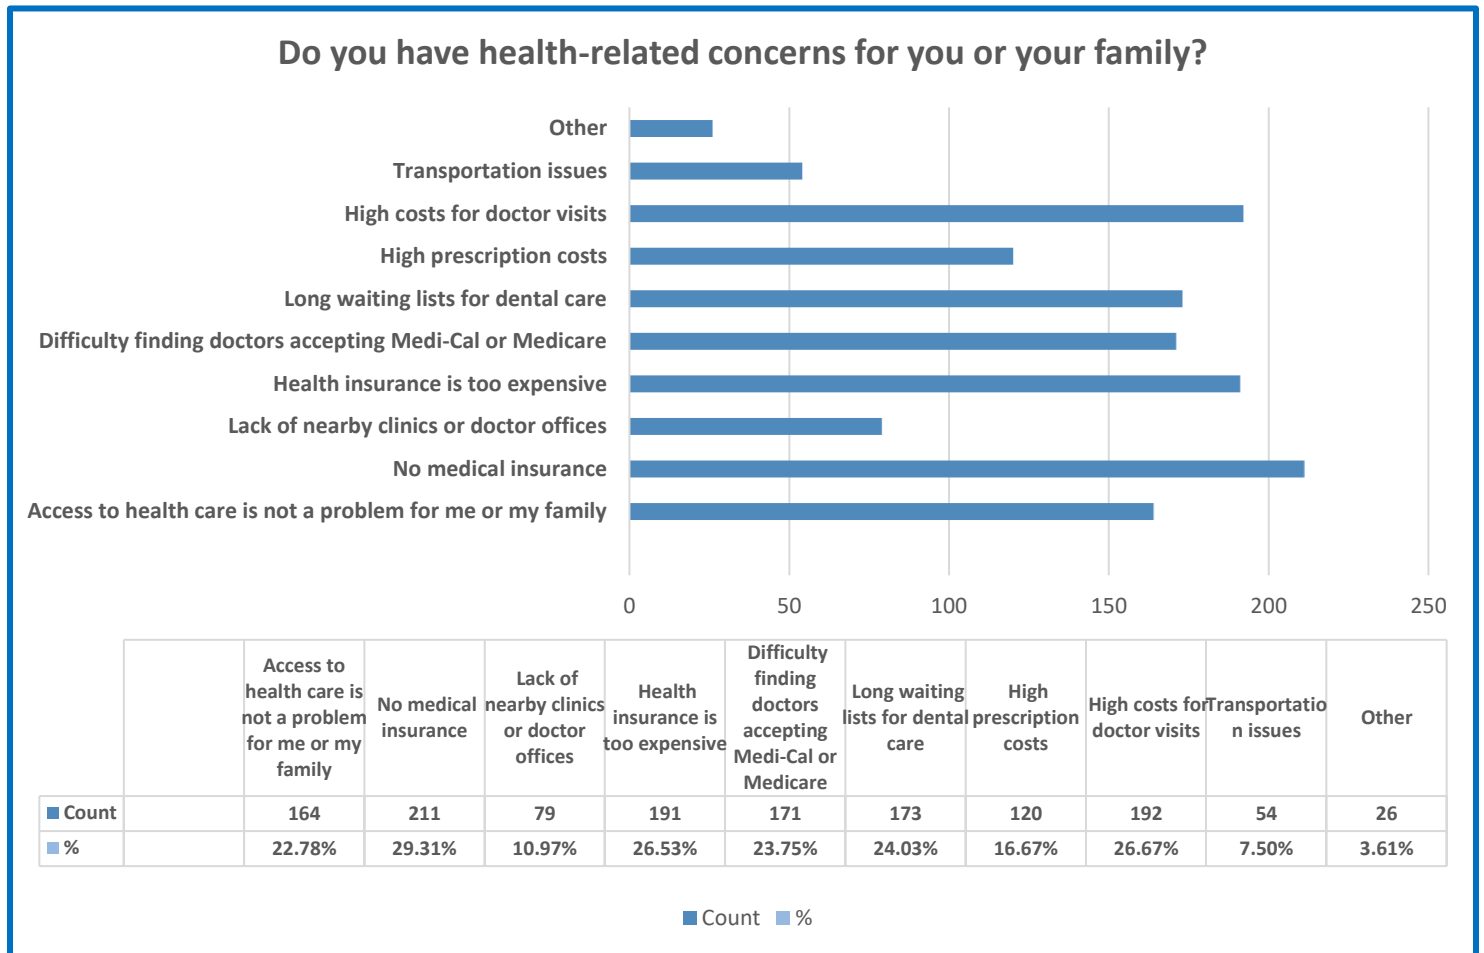

Health Domain

In the health domain, our surveys asked stakeholders and our client community why health is a need or a problem in the community. The survey results overwhelmingly identified cost as a significant problem with healthcare, with 26.53% of respondents indicating that health insurance is too expensive. Access to healthcare is also a concern, with issues related to disabilities and a lack of nearby doctor offices or clinics being highlighted by 10.97% of respondents.

Cost remains the primary concern for both stakeholders and clients, with access to healthcare being a secondary issue. Addressing these concerns is crucial, especially for undocumented Californians who face additional barriers.

Barriers to Accessing Assistance Programs

The survey results reveal significant barriers that community members face when trying to access assistance programs. The most prominent challenge, reported by 535 respondents, is the lack of information about available programs. This underscores a crucial need for improved outreach and communication to ensure that individuals are aware of the resources available to them.

Following this, 229 respondents cited complicated application processes as a significant hurdle. The complexity and length of these processes can discourage individuals from applying or result in incomplete applications, preventing them from receiving much-needed support.

Stigma associated with receiving assistance, reported by 129 respondents, also presents a barrier. This stigma can deter individuals from seeking help due to fear of judgment or embarrassment, highlighting the need for community education and support to normalize accessing assistance.

Transportation issues, also reported by 129 respondents, further complicate access to assistance programs. For those without reliable transportation, reaching program offices or attending necessary appointments can be a significant obstacle.

Overall, these findings illustrate the multifaceted nature of barriers to accessing assistance. Addressing these issues requires a comprehensive approach, including enhancing information dissemination, simplifying application processes, reducing stigma, and improving transportation solutions.

Comparison from Prior 2023 Community Needs Assessment

In the latest CHD Community Needs Assessment, the survey results from 2025 reveal consistent themes with previous assessments, particularly in areas such as affordable housing, low-income challenges, English language barriers, and job skills training. However, a notable shift is the increased emphasis on access to nutritious food, which was not previously identified as a top need. This change may be attributed to the lingering effects of COVID-19 and inflation, which have heightened the demand for food assistance among those struggling financially. Additionally, there has been a significant increase in the need for immigration and citizenship services, with a 50% rise in survey responses from clients and stakeholders compared to the FY2023 Community Needs Assessment.

Conclusion

California Human Development continues to address the needs of communities facing deep poverty and disparities. Each challenge presents an opportunity for growth, particularly in Northern California's agricultural and innovative industries, which offer potential pathways for low-income families to improve their circumstances. The community's desire for safer, affordable housing, better wages, and resources to overcome barriers is evident from the survey data. To meet these challenges, CHD must persist in developing innovative programs that support families in building stability and achieving better lives. The new priorities for 2026-2027, such as education and outreach, aim to address barriers like lack of information, ensuring that community members are aware of and can access the support services available to them.
